Special Committee Cautions Dell Stockholders Regarding Carl Icahn's Misleading Statements About Appraisal Rights

Round Rock, TX – July 11, 2013 – The Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Dell Inc. (NASDAQ: DELL) today issued the following statement regarding Carl Icahn's efforts to encourage Dell stockholders to pursue appraisal proceedings after completion of the transaction proposed by Michael Dell and Silver Lake:

“The Special Committee cautions Dell stockholders that Carl Icahn's latest entreaties that they pursue appraisal with respect to the Dell acquisition misrepresent the risks and costs involved in this course of action. Mr. Icahn's letters claim that seeking appraisal is a “no-brainer” involving “no risk” and that stockholders “might get lucky” if they follow his advice.

“In fact, pursuing appraisal involves substantial risks and costs. First, if a sufficiently large number of shareholders seek appraisal and thus do not vote in favor of the acquisition (which is required to pursue appraisal rights), the merger agreement will be terminated, the merger will not occur, stockholders will not have the opportunity to receive the $13.65 per share cash merger consideration, there will be no appraisal rights, and stockholders will continue to bear the risks of holding their Dell shares. Second, there is no assurance a court would determine the fair value of Dell shares to be greater than $13.65 – and it could determine the value to be less. The $13.65 price has been known by the market since early February and no buyer, including Mr. Icahn, has offered to purchase Dell for a higher price. Third, litigating appraisal proceedings is a protracted and expensive process that each shareholder would have to endure and fund individually. Finally, Mr. Icahn's claim that the buyers may settle appraisal proceedings for an amount in excess of $13.65 within 60 days after the merger is baseless and, in fact, is directly contradicted by the buyers' stated intention not to do so as set forth in Dell's definitive proxy statement.

“Mr. Icahn is asking Dell stockholders to vote against the certainty of $13.65 per share in cash to pursue a highly speculative appraisal remedy. He is also asking them, if the merger does not occur, to cede full control of Dell's board to nominees of the Icahn group and then to hope for a highly leveraged recapitalization transaction that he himself admits may never come to fruition.

“The Special Committee urges stockholders not to be misled by Mr. Icahn’s characterization of the appraisal option and to consider their options with great care, and continues to recommend that shareholders vote FOR the $13.65 all cash merger promptly by telephone or internet to be sure their votes are received in time to be counted at Dell’s Special Meeting to be held on Thursday, July 18 at 8:00 a.m. CDT.”
